Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 220 pages. O. Henry: Obscenely and Outrageously Obliterated is a collection of eighteen classic William Sidney Porter surprise ending short stories that have been rewritten and satirized into adult parody form featuring adult content and language. When author Jay Dubya was a New Jersey public school English teacher, he often enjoyed teaching and reading O. Henrys influential literature to his sometimes-enlightened middle and high school students. Even though O. Henry (1862-1910) had died at a very young age, he still managed to remarkably write over five hundred short stories and anecdotal sketches. W. S. Porters fiction often occurs in familiar environments and settings that he had known well during his short tenure upon this Earth. O. Henry was very familiar with New York City and so his famous stories The Gift of the Magi, The Last Leaf, The Furnished Room, After Twenty Years, The Higher Pragmatism, The Cop and the Anthem, The Green Door, The Caliph, Cupid and the Clock and Mammon and the Archer all take place in Manhattan at or around the turn of the twentieth century during the emergence of the exciting Golden Age of science and technology. Porter was born in the South in Greensboro, North Carolina, and so the prolific author was quite familiar with the culture of the post Civil War Dixie states and some of his popular stories are set there: The Whirligig of Life (Tennessee), One Dollars Worth, A Call Loan, The Pimienta Pancakes (in Texas) and The Emancipation of Billy also take places in the American South. Most interestingly, many of O. Henrys terrific short stories were authored while he was in jail. In 1892 Porter moved to Texas and soon became a teller at an Austin bank where the institutions officials accused him of illegally...
