Ian Erskine, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Historic grand places of long ago eras appeal even today to many people, young and old. Magic elegance and wealth of former high society members still maintain interest in our minds: where and how these people lived and worked, and how their families socialized. The splendour of former timers is still visible in many old palaces, manors and castles, in the old world as well in new. Some have since decayed but some, like Casa Loma, have been painstakingly revitalized and are presented today to the public as landmarks and museums. The renovated Casa Loma amply demonstrates grand architecture and beautiful gardens of older days, even though it was only constructed some hundred years ago. It resembles forms and styles of earlier palaces. Casa Loma, the Toronto, Canada famous castle has been beautifully restored and is open to the public. group tours, weddings and other private functions. It is also a popular location used in film and television production. This is a cut paste paaper model project in a 300:1 scale of this landmark. It contains as many details as is possible in this size. Detailed instructions guide you through cutting, folding, gluing and assembling various building blocks, and placing them on the base plan. Roofs and tower tops pieces are then added to complete te model. Casa Loma, meaning House on the Hill (in Spanish casa = house, loma = hill, hillock), was built on the 5-acre estate. It was constructed between 1911 and 1914 for Toronto financier Sir Henry Mill Pellat. The house was built to look like a castle and it was then the largest private residence in Canada. It had 98 rooms and a secret passage from Sir...
