Taylor Francis Ltd, United Kingdom, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. This book illustrates that the castration complex and the question of the distinction between the sexes are enmeshed in psychoanalytic theories. The subjective negotiation of this distinction impacts the future sexual positions taken up (or not) by the subject, indicating that human sexuality is by no means a given or a natural occurrence in psychoanalysis. Engagement with the psychoanalytic theory of castration provides the reader with a different perspective on the current society's insistence on gradually dissolving the differences between the sexes. For Freud, castration complex is the key to understanding the psychical consequences of the anatomical distinction between the sexes. For Lacan, castration introduces the subject to his/her very existence as a sexed being. Mou Sultana illustrates how these two revolutionary theorists came to such conclusions by close reading of the core texts, interpreting them and highlighting their relevance both within and outside the clinic of modern times. The larger aim is to make the theories of Freud and Lacan on this topic accessible to a wide variety of readers and encourage the use of Freud and Lacan as primary texts, whilst highlighting how a psychoanalytic investigation differs from other disciplines. Hence, the theories have been presented using more accessible language while at the same time utmost efforts have been made to keep their essence intact. The Castration Complex provides an elementary platform for the students of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, and to anyone who is interested in a psychoanalytic investigation into human sexuality.
