

What a City Is For: Remaking the Politics of Displacement (Paperback)

By Matt Hern

MIT Press Ltd, United States, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Reprint. Language: English . Brand New Book. An investigation into gentrification and displacement, focusing on the case of Portland, Oregon s systematic dispersal of black residents from its Albina neighborhood. Portland, Oregon, is one of the most beautiful, livable cities in the United States. It has walkable neighborhoods, bike lanes, low-density housing, public transportation, and significant green space -- not to mention craft-beer bars and locavore food trucks. But liberal Portland is also the whitest city in the country. This is not circumstance; the city has a long history of officially sanctioned racialized displacement that continues today. Over the last two and half decades, Albina -- the one major Black neighborhood in Portland -- has been systematically uprooted by market-driven gentrification and city-renewal policies. African Americans in Portland were first pushed into Albina and then contained there through exclusionary zoning, predatory lending, and racist real estate practices. Since the 1990s, they ve been aggressively displaced -- by rising housing costs, developers eager to get rid of low-income residents, and overt city policies of gentrification. Displacement and disposessions are convulsing cities across the globe, becoming the dominant urban narratives of our time....
