Excerpt from The Trial at Large of William Sparling, Esq., And Samuel Martin Colquitt, on an Indictment for the Murder of Edward Grayson: Before Sir Alan Chambre, Knight, One of the Judges of the Common Pleas, at the Assizes, Held at Lancaster, on Wednesday, April 4th, 1804 To conclude this Preface - the writer hopes that nothing which he has said in it will be in fact misconstrued as to imply that he is making himself a party in this unfortunate business. He certainly has formed his own opinion, as every reader has a right to do, of the merit or demerit of the proceedings detailed in the following pages, but as that opinion is of no moment to the public, he has not had the presumption to obtrude it upon them. His situation in life has laid him under obligations to both parties, which, as it is his duty, for he shall ever be found ready to acknowledge but it will not, on this account, be expected from him that he should commend practices which he abhors, or sacrifice his principles for a false compliance to any man or any party. He hopes he shall be pardoned for taking this occasion of saying, that he sincerely and deeply sympathizes with the highly respectable family upon whom this melancholy entailed such a complicated series of misfortunes, and of his regret that his sympathy under their present afflictions can be to them of so little avail.
