

Pink Slip

By Ciresi, Rita

New York, New York, U.S.A.: Delacorte Pubns Inc, 1999. Hardcover. Condition: New. Dust Jacket Condition: New. 353 Pages. Book Description: A novel about the inescapable bonds of family and personal history, Pink Slip asks the question, in love, what must we reveal about ourselves? Twenty-five-year-old Lisa Diodetto needed a change. Her job editing holocaust memoirs for a prestigious New York publishing company barely paid the rent, and an ill-thought out affair with a married man had left her flattened by the wheels of romance. At the urging of her first cousin and lifelong best friend Dodie, she left New York for a job upstate in the editorial department of a big pharmaceutical company. It was a clean slate far from her working class upbringing in an Italian-American New Haven neighborhood, and she planned to make the most of it. Enter Mr. Eben Strauss, Vice-President of Corporate Development. A man of careful composure, a restrained sense of humor, and impeccable manners. A man who certainly wouldn't appreciate Lisa's big mouth and hot temper. A man who would never dream of compromising his position or anyone else's with any kind of workplace impropriety. A man surprisingly attracted by--and attractive to--Lisa. The relationship...
