

The Match: Academic/Applied Psychology and the Chemical Dependence Field: A Parallel History of Theory, Assessment, and Treatment (Paperback)

By Alfred A. Borrelli

Full Court Press, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . I wrote this book primarily for psychologists and psychiatrists, says Alfred A. Borrelli, since they are the major influencers in the chemical dependence field; my purpose was to change some of the thinking about assessment and treatment based on my very extensive experience of now over fifty years. There is a commitment to ideas, in all fields, that have outlived their usefulness. I don't mean that practitioners and academics have no right to keep those ideas that continue to work well; rather, I am offering a criticism of a conservative movement that has become comfortable with older ideas merely because they have a history. In this regard, he has presented the long history of the psychological field from Plato's time to now and, in the process, suggested why some fields need to change and why some are not aware of their own history. He believes that the ideas here are new and effective, and he has presented evidence for them, because science and scientists move from established facts to established facts, not from stubbornness or loyalty to a tradition. A whole new eBook with a new standpoint. Better than never, though I am quite late in starting to read this one. I discovered this publication from my dad and he advised me to discover it.

The very best publication I have ever read. It really is basic but shocks inside the fifty percent of the eBook. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
