Pathology is that branch of the science of medicine which concerns itself with the study of the manifestations of energy and the changes in structure which take place in a diseased living being. Broadly speaking, it is the science of disease. The term disease includes all those disturbances of the normal manifestations of life which impair, more or less, the adaptability of the individual to surrounding media. By a disease we understand a group of such modifications occurring with sufficient regularity of association to constitute a distinct species. Disease adds no new element to the body; it merely modifies previously existing functions and structures. We deal, therefore, in pathology with two factors: the changes in the function, i. e. , the manifestations of energy, and the changes in the structure, of diseased organs or tissues. The first recognizable change is one...
