At the trial below, plaintiff recovered a verdict of $2,750. Defendant appealed. First. Was there any evidence reasonably tending to show that defendant was guilty of negligence? Second. Was error committed by the court in giving certain instructions to the jury? Third. Was a certain ordinance of the city admissible in evidence? Fourth. Did the court err in permitting testimony to be received as to the distance the car ran after the accident? 1. The charge of negligence against the defendant is as follows: The deceased, in company with a little girl about nine years of age, had left his home, on the north side of Ramsey street, in order to go to a store on the other side of the street car tracks; and a the children approached the tracks the motorman of the car coming down the Oakland avenue grade could have seen the children, and should have anticipated that they would either attempt to cross the tracks ahead of the car, or that they would be in such close proximity as to be in danger, and that under such circumstances it was the duty, of the motorman to have had his car under control, and checked its speed. That the car came down the hill at a rapid rate, and crossed Garfield street without giving any signal, and in consequence the boy was struck. According to the testimony of the little girl, Eleanor Lynch, she and the little boy...
