Excerpt from The Men of the North and Their Place in History: A Lecture Delivered Before the Montreal Literary Club, March 31st, 1869 Well might captive Judah mourn when she found herself at the mercy of such cruel mas ters, who knew no pity, and even extorted a song of mirth from the tears of captivity. The hour of retribution was at hand. A race mightier even than the Assyrians came down upon them, and the prediction was fulfilled Out of the North a nation cometh upon her that shall make her land desolate and no man shall dwell therein. Behold a people shall come from the North, and a great nation, and many kings shall be raised from the coasts of the earth. They shall hold the bow, and the lance. They are cruel and will not show mercy. Their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses, every one put in array, like a man to the battle against thee, oh daughter of Babylon I At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard among the nations. These two nations of the remote past, the Egyptians and Assyrians belonged to what we may call the Shemitic phase of ancient civiliza tion. Excepting the Tyrians, Carthaginians and Saracens, we have no other branches of the Shemitic family that can lay any claim to being a dominant race. After the downfall of Assyria, the sceptre passed into the hands of the Arian or indo-european family of nations.
