Fisher: Consisting of the National Gloria, and a Selection of Poems In this Centennial Poem, I purpose to portray the dream of the average Young America, - proud-spirited and patriotic, who falls to sleep upon some acclivity by the sea, with the murmur of the wave, the ringing of the bells of Freedom, and the roar of the cannon dying upon his ears. If the vision of his country, its wars, its triumphs, its natural scenery, etc., is broken, fitful, and interrupted, it describes, to my notion, what such a dream would be, especially when experienced by a youth full of fire and unhaltered imagination. With the Gloria, I submit a selection of miscellaneous poems, of my very finest feeling and deepest thought. The entire volume is respectfully dedicated to the Centennial of 1876, as a token of enthusiastic devotion to my country.
