Lawrence Fischman, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Everyone loved Sy Blonstein. So said the rabbi at the memorial service after Sy wrapped his Buick around a bois d arc tree. Between sips of Stolî, Sy s widow tells Joshua Loeb, family friend and lawyer, that she wants to sue GM for $10 million because Sy s airbag failed to open. Promising a painstaking investigation while he winds down Sy s accounting practice, Loeb says to himself, At least she waited until after the funeral. Loeb s investigation gets no help from the police. They are preoccupied with apprehending El Chupacabra, the popular name given to a vigilante who is taking drug dealers off the streets of Dallas by ripping out their hearts and eating them. La Boca Grande, a headline-grabbing city councilwoman, is threatening to rip out the police chief s heart if he doesn t get El Chupacabra off her streets. With the expert help of an on-parole car thief, Loeb finds enough evidence to be convinced that somebody didn t love Sy after all. As Loeb s digging takes him to a gentlemen s club whose best customers are a meth-dealing skinhead gang, the investigation becomes more a pain in the butt than painstaking. Because all the real detectives are working the El Chupacabra cases Sy s case gets assigned to Lana Turner, a desk jockey detective in auto crimes. She and Loeb get along about as well as a couple in a child custody fight until the Blonstein case and the El Chupacabra cases collide like Sy s Buick and the bois d arc tree.
