The Brain and the Nerves />The brain and the nerves constitute the means through -*. which man the creature comes closely in touch with God the Creator. The brain and the nerves together constitute the seat of the mind, the consciousness, the will, the thinking, feeling, governing organs. The brain and nerves are commonly described separately as independent organs, but in reality they are one. The thinking and feeling organ, as the whole together might be called, centers in the cranial cavity, but occupies the whole body. The smallest brain conceivable is a minute mass of transparent material, of irregular shape, and so small that several hundred ranged in line would make a row only an inch long. The scientific name of such a structure is a nerve cell, or neuron. A neuron consists of a body with elongations or branching parts. One of these branches is commonly very greatly elongated, often to the extent of several inches, ending in a delicate tuft. The accompanying cut gives a representation of a typical neuron. Nerve cells have many different forms. A very interesting branching form is presented in the cut. Every cell of this sort is a center of nervous activity, a seat of intelligence, a source of energy, a living battery in which energy is generated, or rather in which the energy derived from the food is set free, and made to appear in vital work. The mass of matter within the cranium...
