Excerpt from Christian Aims and Instrumentalities: A Sermon Preached at the Induction of Rev. C. H. A. Dall, to the Pastoral Care of the First Religious Society in Needham, February 7, 1847 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls. Our new-england towns and villages are marked by an imposing array of religious instrumentalities; in their houses of worship, in their various religious organizations, in the residence and labors of a Christian ministry. Sometimes these instrumentalities have been idolized, while the end, for the accomplishment of which they are appointed, has been overlooked. And then again, on the other hand, they have been undervalued and neglected. I propose, therefore, at this time, to occupy your attention by an endeavor to point out what is ultimate and final in religion, to mark the distinction between the end to be sought, and the instrumentalities appointed for its attainment, and to show in what way these instrumentalities are subsidiary and efficient.
