Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Address of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of California, Hon.: John Swett, Before the State Teachers Institute, Held in San Francisco, May 7th, 1867 Four years ago, many of you now before me, were present at the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of teachers that ever assembled in this State. I remember well the circumstances under which we met. The army of the Potomac had been driven back from the disastrous field of Chancellorsville; the rebel hordes were already on their march into the heart of the North: and wounded, bleeding, and exhausted, the nation seemed to be gathering its powers for the final wager of battle which should determine its fate forever. The star of treason seemed to be in the ascendant. Rebels were exultant and patriots despondent. Vicksburg could never be taken; Port Hudson was impregnable; and Lee would soon lay New York in ashes. In two short months Grant had strangled Vicksburg; Port Hudson had fallen; Gettysburg, made immortal by victory, was consecrated by the graves of thousands of heroes who died that we might live; the tide of invasion was rolled back, and the nation was saved. Then followed in swift and glorious succession: Chattanooga, the fall of Atlanta, the annihilation of Hood, Sherman s triumphal march through Georgia and South Carolina, the desperate struggles of the Wilderness, the decisive battle of Five Forks, the surrender of Lee, and the war was ended. The exultation of victory, and the gladness of peace were saddened by the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the last great victim of the barbarism of slavery; and a new political contest began for the preservation...
