Reviews

This published book is wonderful. It is really simplified but unexpected situations within the fifty percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Mayfair Publishing. Paperback. Condition: New. 316 pages. Dimensions: 8.0in. x 5.2in. x 0.8in. Perfect for the holidays! In the harsh winter of the Scottish Highlands, where love and past history are equally fierce, burning away old hurts lets the future bloom its brightest. Award-winning author Martina Boone takes us back to the magical setting of the Celtic Legends Collection to spin a heartwarming standalone novel of love and loss, family and friendship, hope and redemption, small towns and big ambitions. Cait Fletcher was always second-string in her father's eyes, unable to compete with her perfect older brother. Her father's view of Cait only deteriorated when she fell for the local bad boy at the age of nine, and her love for Brice MacLaren never once wavered until the day he betrayed her a few months before their wedding. But their tiny glen in the Scottish Highlands is full of secrets, opinionated neighbors, wandering sheep, and countless old traditions, which left no place for Cait to escape either her past or her mistakes. She moved away--until her father's unexpected illness gave her no choice but to return for the winter holidays. Home again, Cait still loves the village of Balwhither as much as she hates it, and she despises the fact that just the sight of Brice has never stopped making her heart twist and her breath come faster. But when she discovers that her father has given up not only on the family-run Library and Tea Room but also on treatment for his cancer, she must put her own emotions and fears aside. Brice claims he's changed, and he's certainly been good to her father since she left, but can they find a way to work together as she fights to save the Library and give her father something meaningful...
