GRIN Verlag GmbH Aug 2014, 2014. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 210x148x1 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Essay from the year 2000 in the subject Communications - Language, grade: 4, Cardiff University (Centre for Language and Communication), course: Sociolinguistics, language: English, comment: Making reference to relevant literature, discuss the notions of network and network relations as used in sociolinguistic studies. Choosing one model of representing social and linguistic networks, construct a representation of different varieties of language you use (as a reference point, choose a typical Monday during semester time). Comment on your network, taking into consideration complexity, density and accommodation, and select two linguistic aspects of your varieties for discussion (e.g. lexical choice, or accent, or grammar)., abstract: Every human being participates in society and has relations to other human beings. What makes us human is the ability to speak. In order to communicate, people have to find a shared language. There is the fiction of Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe, but this is an exception. For to survive and to earn our daily bread we have to express our will and organise ourselves. In modern linguistics the expression network is very common. Every human being participates in a more or less elaborated network. The expression network has got its origin in computer science. There we talk about computer networks. It is possible to combine computers with each other and they can exchange information. This essay is about linguistic networks, that are networks between human beings. In order to discuss the notions network and network relations I refer to my own experiences on a typical Monday during semester time at Cardiff University. I also want to mention code-switching and describe a classical model of a linguistic network: William Labov's Social Stratification...
