Excerpt from Report on Endangered and Threatened Plant Species of the United States: Presented to the Congress of the United States of America by the Secretary, Smithsonian Institution, 15 December 1974 All animals are dependent on plants for food and survival. Once a species of plant is extinct, the potential contained in that germ or gene pool is lost forever. A diversity of plant species is required to supply human necessities and to maintain an ecological stability in the biosphere. The Endangered Species Act of 1973 (public Law 93-205, approved December 28, 1973) directed the Smithsonian Institution to prepare a list of endangered and threatened plant species, to review methods of adequately conserving these species, and to report the Institution's recommendations to the Congress. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This book is a reproduction of an important historical work.
