Not illustrated. 1879 Excerpt: .in health varies according to ago, sex, time of day, muscular exercise, activity of physiological processes, and that in febrile diseases their variations are greater than in health. According to Wagner, the lowest temperature occurs in healthy adults in the middle of the night, about one or two o clock, and the highest temperature in the afternoon. A variation of 1 is quite compatible with perfect health. Temperature in slightly higher in infaney and in old age, and in children the temperature is more easily affected than in adult life. Hence in disease a high temperature has less significance in children than in adults. Regulation of body temperature seems to bo under the control of the nervous system. The natural moans for reducing the heat of the body is radiation and evaporation. Experiments by Dr. Ringer, in 1868, on healthy children with quinine showed that it only reduced the temperature when given in very large doses to the extent of of a degree; variations much greater than this takes place in health without any drug treatment. Quinine in sufficient doses to reduce the temperature even this much, produced noises in the ear, and may other unpleasant symptoms. Dr. Bell then said that, in his opinion, quinine was very much over-rated as an antipyretic; that it probably has little, if any, influence on tempera. ture, and in those cases where it appears to have reduced pyretic heat, the effect was probably due to some other cause. That..
