By Simon Newton Dexter North

Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Cooperation and Unification in Federal and State Statistical Work
The concentration of many of these statistical bureaus under the super vision of one Cabinet officer, is a long step toward the reform of these inconsistencies. No more important duty will fall to the Secretary of the new department than to see that duplication and contradiction, so far as relates to the statistics prepared by the bureaus under his jurisdiction, shall forthwith cease. He will accomplish it by the simple rule already indicated, that there shall be consultation and cooperation between these bureaus, and agreement on the statistics which can be shown to be most nearly right. With such supervision and cooperation, there is no danger that the establishment of a permanent Census Office will increase the volume of Government statistics, or add to the duplication, contradiction, and con fusion. On the contrary, while the scope of Federal statistics may be greatly extended, their actual bulk may perhaps be reduced, and certainly a definite order, symmetry, and consistency may be imparted to them. It is permissible, perhaps, to go a step farther,...
