Handsome book, textured putty colored cloth over boards, with Gold gilt title impressed on spine, in glossy photographic jacket. Author Jean Bruce who had worked with the National Museums of Canada, put together this fascinating and informative book of Canadian social history post WWII , with regard to immigrants who were admitted to Canada. She quotes from the Canadian Minister of Immigration of the time, in dispatches, public and private; some of which seem shocking to modern sensibilities. Quotes from hundreds of interviews with the immigrants; war brides from Britain , refugees and displaced persons from all countries in Europe, including Germany and Holland, and later, Asia, create a picture of Canada at a vibrant period of history which was to change the face of the nation forever. The photographs tell the tale - war brides smiling nervously at the train stations, waiting for their husbands to pick them up in the new land; workers on farms and in factories across the country; lumberjacks and sawmill workers in British Columbia; construction workers on Yonge Street working on the Toronto subway in 1950 ; and drilling operations in Taber , Alberta ; and working on the Trans Canada highway construction in Saskatchewan ; working in the textile industry in Montreal ; working on dam construction near Trail...
