Paperback. Condition: New. 182 pages. In his third published work, Antonio Cassone continues his memoir book series with season two. Opening the Naked Window picks up right where its predecessor Looking through the Naked Window left off. This story tells of a life lived to the fullest with all the joy, love, pain and loss that goes with it and the storyteller reveals himself with a no holds barred approach. The premise of what if your life were a weekly television drama series continues where chapters are episodes and installments in the continuing series are referred to as seasons. As you get deeper into the tale, you are drawn in to a world that is entertaining, full of sensual pulp, passionate and intense. You never know where it will take you, but you soon find out that it is not about the destination at all. It is about the journey. -----

ANTONIO CASSONE, originally from Detroit, is an accomplished author, photographer and entertainer with a career enriched with many diverse projects since 1988. He has produced, performed, written and co-directed two major, award-winning plays; the semi-autobiographical The Ashley Correspondence in 1993 and Dont Let Me Be Lonely Tonight in 1995 at 1515 Broadway in Detroit's theatre district. Cassone performed in Patrick Burtons masterpiece Punk and produced/performed/directed eight Extravaganzas in the 90s, which were fashion/variety shows and several spoken-word recordings including, No Measure, an audio play about victim-survivors; Miranda Davison, an audio play about his career as a female impersonator/illusionist/entertainer and Diva Cassone, his first poetry cd. ANTONIO CASSONE is also, most recently, an accomplished author with six books to his credit. DIVACASSONE (2006) (no longer in print), a book of poetry and LOOKING THROUGH THE NAKED WINDOW (2007), book one of his memoir series are published through Publish America.
