Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Record of the Establishment of the Indian Institute in the University of Oxford: Being an Account of the Circumstances Which Led to Its Foundation It will have in view the great advantage to be derived from conveying instruction through the interaction of ear and eye. Its Lectures-rooms, Library, and Museum will by their interdependence and intercommunication aid and illustrate each other. Its Library will offer for daily use a collection of Indian manuscripts, books, maps, and plans, many of them too rare and costly to be procurable by private means. Its Reading-room will be supplied with all kinds of Indian newspapers and periodicals, some of them in the native languages. Its Museum will present to the eye a typical collection of specimens and examples, which, judiciously selected and arranged, will give, so to speak, a concise synopsis of India - of the country and its material products - of the people and their moral condition. Assuredly neither Library nor Museum will aim at attracting mere sight-seers, curiosity-hunters, and excursionists. Their sole raison d etre, their...
