Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Commercial Policy of the British Colonies and the McKinley Tariff In 1846 extreme discontent was manifested by a large part of the population. In the beginning of 1852 their affections, which had appeared to be hopelessly alienated, had been regained, and all classes joined in evincing their attachment to the British Crown and to the institutions under which they lived the hate ful animosities and rancour which had been created by civil war and differences of national origin had almost disappeared, and the party divisions which still existed were not greater than those usually to be found in all free governments. A system of constitutional government copied from our own had also been brought into full Operation, and was universally acquiesced in. An equally marked improvement had taken place in the material prosperity of the Province, as was shown by the fact that its credit in the London Stock Exchange had risen from a somewhat low level, and was fully as high as that of the United States. I will only add that I beg you to believe me your very sincere and earnest friend and well-wisher. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
