We have at this date in the library 7,533 volumes, and of these, 4,123 are listed, numbered, and catalogued, making an addition of 1,423 to the number reported last year; 1,839 school and text books--many of this class have been completely worn out and discarded; 1,047 are of a miscellaneous character--many of these are very old and many of them very small, but we put them all in use among the men when practicable and wherever they can prove beneficial; 265 are Bibles, prayer books, and New Testaments, but this number does not include those Bibles now in the hands of prisoners; 259 are secular and devotional Hebrew books, set apart in the library for the exclusive use of the Jews. THE PRISON SCHOOL. The school session just closed has been in many respects the most successful term since the prison school was established. Characterized by carefulness in study and good deportment of the pupils, I am glad to report very satisfactory results from the work of the teachers, both of the white and colored classes. Of the 18 classes, the reports of some of the teachers show remarkably fine work done by their pupils, while all report a good and fair standing in their classes. The aptitude for learning to read and write speedily exhibited by some of the pupils demonstrates the benefit of the school in prison, especially for those who are entirely ignorant when received. Some have acquired the knowledge...
