Excerpt from The Machinery of Government The most important constitutional development in the United Kingdom during the last year has been the introduction of the War Cabinet system. This change was the direct outcome of the War itself. As the magnitude of the war increased, it became evident that the Cabinet system of peace days was inadequate to cope with the novel conditions. On which the Committee makes the following comment: But we think that a rearrangement of the supreme direction of the executive organization as it formerly existed has been rendered necessary, not merely by the war itself, but by the prospect after the war. And in answer to the question as to whether it is possible to return to the old order of things (which I take to mean those before the war) the Committee states we feel confident that the latter question must be answered in the negative.
