Excerpt: . . . 11 During the months of January, February and March 1991, we repeatedly experi-enced the loud alarms of chemical detectors. We ingested expired pyrostigmine bro-mide tablets; we wore gas masks with expired filters, inhaled dust and sand in the air that was thick with the black of burning oil. I experienced respiratory difficul-ties, my skin grew hot with red rashes and I began to suffer from debilitating head-aches. Many of my contemporaries experienced many of the same, or a combination of these symptoms. For a time, my husband, also a Persian Gulf War veteran, and myself were very ready to put the history of our experiences and exposures in the Gulf far behind us and move forward with our lives and begin a family. It was after our children were born in 1995 and in 1997 that we could no...

Reviews

The publication is simple in go through preferable to fully grasp. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
