There is no end to the good things wha might be said concerning this volume, and the advioe of tbe writer to any school board abont to adopt text in general science is to become thoroughly familiar with this book before making a final decision. Walter Bark, Keokuk, Iowa: --Today when I showed Barber s Science to tbe manager and depat ment heads of the Mississippi River Power Co., including probably the best engineers of America possit to assemble accidentally as a group, the exclamation around tbe table was: If we only could have had book like this when we were in school. Something similar in my own mind caused me to determine give the book to my own son altho he is in only tbe eighth grade. G. M. Wilson, Iowa State College: --I have not been particularly favorable to the general science idea, b I am satisfied now that this was due to the kind of texts wbioh came to my attention and tbe waj happened to be handled in places where I had knowledge of its teaching. I am satisfied that Profess Barber, in this...
