Reviews

The publication is simple in go through preferable to fully grasp. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Not illustrated. 1905 Excerpt: tones: Will the court strike out all after I was, in that answer? The reply will stand, Judge Howes murmured, unable to wholly control his emotion. Almost before Preston had concluded, attention was slightly distracted by the sound of horse s hoofs rapidly approaching, followed by a loud whoa, in a voice that sent an electric vibration throughout the court room. As the new arrival rushed in with scant ceremony, everybody looked in that direction as though expecting a denouement, and were not disappointed when the man s voice was heard to inquire anxiously, and with hardly due deference to the court: Where s the lawyers? I want to testify in defense. Wait a moment, Whiting had exclaimed to Josselyn as he was about to leave the stand. Then the lawyer turned to investigate the interruption. It was Buckskin Joe who strode down the aisle and conferred with Whiting in hurried whispers. Jumping to his feet again: Just another question, Josselyn, the lawyer said, stepping closer and asking gravely: Have you an enemy who is disposed to injure you? Object, cried Preston. Admitted, responded the court. Josselyn replied sadly, as his face fell: I regret to say I have--in New York. What is his name? Henry Rudolph. What was the occasion for this enmity? Preston sneeringly inquired. Am I obliged to answer? asked Josselyn, blushing, as he appealed to the court. The question is proper, Judge Howes replied. With noticeable effort and much feeling, the...
