Justice Denied: Bermuda's Black Militants, the Third Man the Assassinations of a Police Chief Governor (Paperback)

By Mel Ayton

Strategic Media Books, United States, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. This is the first full account of the 1972/1973 assassinations of Bermuda's governor, Richard Sharple, and police chief, George Duckett. The book includes a foreword by Dr Carol Shuman, a former journalist with the Bermuda Sun and Mid Ocean News. During the 1970s, a black power organisation in Bermuda, which modelled itself on the American Black Panthers, conspired to bring about social change by any means necessary, including assassination. The struggle for equal rights in Bermuda during this period both imitated events in the United States and was heavily influenced by them. This is especially true for the role American black militants played in encouraging Bermuda's youth to challenge the white power structure on the island. Bermuda became the first nation to suffer the violent effects of the importation of 1960s-style American Black Power militancy. As a result, Governor Sharple, Police Chief George Duckett and others were murdered. Justice Denied points the finger of guilt at a faction of the black militant grouped by the Third Man , who controlled the convicted assassins. The author names the Bermuda businessman, a convicted drug dealer, who...
