Excerpt from Russian Dandelion (Kok-Saghys): An Emergency Source of Natural Rubber Inasmuch as no kok-saghyz had been grown in this country before early 1942 and as almost no background information about the grow ing Of kok-saghyz for rubber production was available, the value Of recording detailed data Was recognized when the Emergency Rubber Project was started. Provision was made for collection, tabulation, and evaluation Of such data and for preparation Of reports by members Of the project as well as by cooperating individuals and agencies. Frequent review Of these field and laboratory reports furnished a back ground for planning the developing program.
