Excerpt: . . . for such as come under the theorems and problems of Euclid; albeit, there may not arise a single case involving anything higher than the fundamental rules of Arithmetic. These young ladies and gentlemen soon find that they have to manage cases in which their formula: utterly fail them, if, indeed, they ever think of them. They are called to act upon other minds, when demonstration, if it convince, will fail to persuade; and, more than this, they are called upon to fill a vacuity in their own minds, of which their education has made them partially conscious, but has done nothing to satisfy, and the full extent of which they now begin to realize. They find themselves possessed of other faculties than mere reason. The imagination and taste, the whole world of passion, rise up and burst all the bulwarks of their mathematical...
