Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Here are stories written so long ago that I cannot remember writing them. I was fresh from a sojourn through graduate school and adventures in a foreign country. My mind was filled with the thoughts of greatness; I would become famous and leave the dust of a childhood growing up in Flushing, Queens, New York behind. I would conquer the world! In other words, I was living in a world from which there was only one direction to go and that was down. Then, I came back from Canada and my historical studies in the great North, back as a writer of fiction filled with dreams. Returning, I was forced into the same apartment in which I had grown up in Flushing with my parents; my father, an angry, out-of-work factory worker, was still the asshole; still roared and drank and punched and ridiculed at dreams. While listening to my father s curses and my parents constant fighting, I wrote, locked away in a little room, pounding keys of an old Olivetti typewriter. Soon, I finished a novella and a story collection, and found places to send them. Weeks passed. I imagined Madison Avenue publishers pouring through my pages and congratulating themselves on finding the next genius. I walked around Flushing with these thoughts until my first manuscript was returned with a form rejection. I was crushed, embarrassed, and angry. But, what did they know! Many more rejections followed but without causing self-doubt. Manuscripts streamed to big and small publishers across the United States and Canada, always followed by rejection. Eventually, I got out of my parent s apartment, and found jobs as a writer in corporate America. The stories...
