Excerpt: . which ac. and the Exchequer, --each consisting, at present, beuItily of four judges. The original distribution of business among them, upon their first establishment, was as follows: the cognizance of crime, and of such matters of litigation in general, as directly concerned the crown (those relating to the revenue excepted)was exclusively appropriate to the Court of King s Bench; civil suits between subject and subject (called communia placita) to the Common Pleas; and matters relating to the royal revenue, to the Exchequer (c). In course of time, considerable violations of this arrangement took place, usurpation on the province of the Common Pleas being made by each of the other courts. Of these changes the general result is as follows. The King s Bench has now jurisdiction not only in those matters which belonged to it by its original constitution, but in all personal...
