Excerpt from Scheme for Reducing, and Finally Redeeming, the National Debt, and for Gaining Half a Million of Revenue, by Extinguishing a Tax The history of this country for the last century will teach us, that we have seldom enjoyed fifteen years of Peace together, and that upon an average in every period of twenty years, at least five or six of those years have been years of War; and if we reflect for a moment on the relative situation of Britain's full extended Empire, on the unsettled state and new-formed alliances of neighboring nations; and, above all, on the magnitude of our Debt, and that we have an enemy ever watchful to seize on every advantage tending to depress these kingdoms, it will appear more than probable, that what has uniformly happened may continue to happen, and abundantly justify the prediction: And although we should be more fortunate and enjoy a continual Peace during the period foretold or longer, we should be wanting in prudence if it would be folly - it would be madness to be unprepared against the events of War.
