

In Dark Again in Wonder: The Poetry of Rene Char and George Oppen (Paperback)

By Robert Baker

University of Notre Dame Press, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. At the centre of In Dark Again in Wonder are readings of Rene Char (1907-89) and George Oppen (1908-82). Both of these poets achieved recognition at a young age, Char among the French surrealists in the 1930s, Oppen among the American objectivists in the same decade. Both were independent individuals who, having found their way to communities of inventive writers, stepped back and shaped their own idiosyncratic paths. Both responded decisively to the social upheavals of the 1930s and 1940s. Oppen committed himself to radical politics in the 1930s, a decision that, as it turned out, led to his not writing poetry for nearly twenty-five years. Char fought in the Resistance in the 1940s. Both, in their mature work, developed a kind of poetry that is at once a love poetry, a meditative poetry, and a poetry of encounter. The concluding chapter of the book places the questions raised by Char's and Oppen's work in a larger context, tracing the cultural history that shapes our modern experience of inhabiting a tension between a historical and a metaphysical horizon of experience, or,...
