Excerpt from Gases in Metals, Vol. 1: The Determination of Combined Nitrogen in Iron and Steel and the Change in Form of Nitrogen by Heat Treatment In the 1918 edition of Blair's Chemical Analysis of Iron and Steel the Allen method is given with several modifications made by Langley. The chief change in the method is the treatment of the caustic-soda solution with a copper-zinc couple to remove nitrates and nitrites. Bousingault 4 had called attention to the fact that nitrates and nitrites in the solution during the distillation were partly reduced to ammonia by the ferrous hydroxide present. Another method for the determination of the ammonia in the distillate was proposed in 1907 by Petren and Grabe.⁵ This consisted in collecting the distillate in standard sulphuric acid.
