Let it be remembered that I am speaking of the dyspeptic stomach, and not of that which is in the enjoyment of all its healthy powers and of all its natural sensibilities. To the man in health, and who takes regular exercise, almost every kind of food is wholesome, as Celsus remarked nearly two thousand years ago-- sanis Omnia Sana. But the invalid may ask-- can I not have my ailments removed without abridging my indulgences? No! And the practitioner who undertakes the treatment under such conditions, betrays either a want of principle or a want of judgment. Well, then, the patient adopts such a simple and abstemious plan of diet that he feels no material augmentation of his sufferings after food; but still he is far from well. He escapes those periodical aggravations of his complaint; but the medium ratio of valetudinary...
