Forgotten Books, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Geology of the London District, Being the Area Included in the Four Sheets of the Special Map of London The great cost of the hand-coloured edition of the one-inch Geological Map of London and its Environs having made it desirable to issue a less expensive map, the present colour-printed edition, covering almost the same area, was published in four sheets in 1903. Though largely founded on the work of Mr. Whitaker and his colleagues, as depicted on the earlier map, the new sheets include the results of a six-inch survey of parts of the Thames Valley, made in 1902 by Mr. T. I. Pocock and Mr. J. Allen Howe. Mr. Woodward, who had taken part in the original Drift Survey of the area, superintended the progress of the new work, but owing to the pressure of other duties, was unable to write the necessary descriptive memoir during his official connection with the Survey. He very kindly volunteered to do this after his retirement, and the present volume is the result. The Guide to the Geology of London and the Neighbourhood, prepared by Mr. Whitaker and published in 1875, dealt with the area contained in the older map of London and its Environs. This work reached its sixth edition in 1901 and is now out of print. The present memoir describes the slightly smaller area embraced in the new map. While avoiding local detail, the author discusses generally the characters of the geological formations, and summarises the most recent views on the various problems presented by them. For this purpose he has revisited many parts of the area, and has also taken the opportunity to collect records of new sections. No...
