Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Springer, Berlin | Ed.: World Health Organization (WHO) | In Collaboration with Pathologists in 6 Countries | This is a classification of tumours and tumour-like lesions of the liver. It is based primarily on the microscopic characteristics of the tumours, and is therefore concerned with morphologically identifiable cell types and histological patterns. The haematoxylin- and eosin-stained section remains the mainstay of morphological diagnosis, but special histochemical stains are often helpful and have been referred to in the explanatory notes. Readers interested in specific special stains mentioned in the text should consult Laboratory Methods in Histotechnology of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, D. c., USA. 1 The results of immunohistochemical methods for identifying various tumour "markers" have also been noted whenever indicated. The present classification incorporates all the previously classified tumours, but also includes several new lesions, viz. biliary papillomatosis, the fibrolamellar variant of hepatocellular carcinoma and epithelioid haemangioendothelioma. Several subtypes of hepatoblastoma are mentioned. A serous type of bile duct cystadenoma is described. The section on tumour-like lesions has been expanded to include focal fatty change and inflammatory pseudotumour. The section on adenomatous hyperplasia, including macroregenerative nodules, has been amplified. The number of photomicrographs has been increased from the original 56 to 150. Unlike the first edition, the photomicrographs in the second edition are mostly black and white. All are new and were taken of representative cases on file at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. | Introduction Histological Classification of Tumours of the Liver Definitions and Explanatory Notes Epithelial Tumours Nonepithelial Tumours Miscellaneous Tumours Unclassified Tumours Haemopoietic and Lymphoid Tumours Metastatic Tumours Epithelial Abnormalities Tumour-like Lesions TNM Classification of Tumours of the Liver Illustrations Subject Index | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 346 gr | 125...
