Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Thomas Jefferson as a Legislator At an early day in the same session (october, 1776) he introduced a bill for the revision of the laws. It passed October 24th, and 011 November 5th, by a joint vote of the two Houses, Thomas Jefferson, Edmund Pendleton, George Wythe, George Mason and Thomas Lightfoot Lee were appointed a committee to do the work. Naturally Mr. Jefferson, as the patron and author of the measure, was the chair man of the committee. He was first named in the resolution appointing them, and his name is first signed to the report subsequently made when the work was done. But nowhere in his writings have I found that he has stated that he was the chairman. The members of this committee met in January, 1777, at Fredericksburg (a point central and relatively convenient to all except Mr. Jefferson), to take a general view of the work to be done, settle a few leading principles, and distribute the task among the members of the committee. When the distribution came to be made, Mr. Mason and Mr. Lee excused themselves, on the ground that not being lawyers they felt unqualified to take any part of it. Soon after this meeting Mr. Lee died, and Mr. Mason resigned from the committee. Under the bill for their appointment the committee had the power to fill vacancies; but this the remaining members did not feel called on to do, the leading principles fixing the lines on which the work should proceed having been already agreed on by the whole original committee. In the distribution made, the common law and British statutes down to the...
