Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Taxation Reform or the Best and Fairest Means of Raising the Public Revenue: Being a Paper Read at the Congress of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science, Section Economy and Trade, Held at Cheltenham Oct 1878 I propose to submit for public consideration what I believe to be the fairest mode of raising the public revenue. There is, perhaps, no opinion more firmly adopted by the vast majority of the British people, than that the present system of taxation is only continued until some other system less prejudicial to the agricultural, commercial, industrial, and social interests of the community can be devised to enable the Government to fully accomplish the enlightened and provident policy of distributive justice and freedom for all alike. Before I open my scheme I would beg leave to observe that the object proposed is to do away with all indirect taxes, and to raise all supplies by one single direct contribution, which, however, would be no tax upon land, nor upon capital, nor upon income.
