Excerpt from Eulogium Upon Wilberforce: With a Brief Incidental Review of the Subject of Colonization; Delivered, at the Request of the Abolition Society, March 10, 1834 Biography is individual history, as distinguished from that of communities, of nations, and of worlds. Eulogy is that deserved applause which springs from the virtues and attaches itself to the characters of men. With this understanding, perhaps, there is no more illustrious subject of encomium - none more largely entitled to, and none less requiring the voice of praise than William Wilberforce. One whose practical benevolence was its own best monument - whose wide spread philanthropy, while it acknowledged no limits but the boundaries of the world, the melancholy sphere to which human action is confined, Operated upon principles as extensive - as immutable - as eternal as truth itself. It is not to reward him - for if private and public worth be an earnest of future bliss, he has already received an unearthly reward in the bosom of his Saviour but it is to inculcate upon others the moral beauty and value of his example, that we, my fellow-citizens, have this day assembled. His benignant spirit, removed from a state of temporal warfare and temporal sorrow to the realms of the just made perfect, looks down from its blessed abode upon his disciples in the great cause of human freedom, and lights, and leads, and lures them on, to the accomplishment of that immortal work, which he himself so gloriously begun so devotedly pursued - so extensively achieved.
