He received numerous nominations and awards while working at the National Film Board of Canada. During his career George has directed such luminaries as Robert Mitchum, Richard Harris, Jeanne Moreau, Brad Pitt, and George Clooney in films shot In Montreal, France and Hollywood. Kaczender was born in Budapest, Hungary and spent over twenty years in Montreal before going to Hollywood. He also had a stint as an adjunct professor at USC teaching film directing. Notebooks of an Incurable Romantic is Kaczender s second semi-autobiographical novel covering his turbulent life in Hungary from 1933 to 1956, the year of the famous uprising. This coming-of-age story is set in Budapest during the Nazi terror, where Gabi Fodor is forced into hiding to survive the persecution and systematic murder of the Jewish population. After the Soviet Army liberated Hungary, a Communist, totalitarian regime usurped a short-lived democracy and instantly...
