Hand-bills were printed, and constables stationed to prevent a recurrence of these scenes. : - , Whilst Ranelagh was in fashion, the Bun- House was much frequented by the visitors of that celebrated temple of pleasure; but after the failure of Ranelagh, the business fell off in a great degree, and dwindled into insignificance. INTERIOR OF CHELSEA BUN-HOUSE. The interior was formerly fitted up in a Wry singular and grotesque style, being furnished with foreign clocks, and many natural and artificial curiosities from abroad; but most of these articles have disappeared since the decease of Mrs. Hand. At the upper end of the shop is placed, in a large glass-case, a model of Radcliffe Church, at Bristol, cut out very curiously and elaborately in paste-board; but the upper towers, pinnacles, c. resemble more an eastern mosque than a Christian church. Over the parlour door is placed an equestrian coloured statue, in lead, of William, the great Duke of Cumberland, in the military costume of the year 1745, taken just after the celebrated battle of Culloden: it is eighteen inches in height. On each side stand two grenadier guards, presenting arms, and in the military dress of the above period, with their high sugarloaf caps, long-flap coats, and broad giberles, and old-fashioned muskets, presenting a grotesque appearance, when compared with the neat short-cut military trim of the present day. These figures are also cast in lead, and coloured; are near four feet high, and weigh each...
