Excerpt from The Community Orchestra, Its Formation and Maintenance A most valuable and effectual means of aiding in the maintenance of the community orchestra would be by the co operation of the non-playing music lovers of the town, formed into a committee for the management of affairs outside of the strictly musical arrangements for the orchestra. Which should of course be entirely under the control of the conductor. It would be the duty of this committee to attend to the col lection of funds for the necessary expenses - which, by the way, should not be very great - such as for music, music stands and for the purchase of instruments for those who could not afford them, or any which would be of use only to the orches tra, such as tympani, drums, double basses, etc. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
