Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Teachers College Bulletin: A Scale for Measuring the Importance of Habits of Good Citizenship, With Descriptions of Its Use in a New Report Card at the Horace Mann School Naturally the parents and pupils felt that the school was sending home on the regular report card the information about the child which was considered most important; and the teachers themselves, for a similar reason, were likely to view the instruction in the traditional school studies as their chief duty. In order to consider the preparation of reports for the elementary school which should be free from as many of these objectionable features as possible, a committee of two, consisting of the writers, was appointed. The new system which is here described was subsequently devised; and, so far as its main features are concerned, was put in operation as an experiment in September, 1918, in the Horace Mann Elementary School of Teachers College and the Scarborough School, Scarborough-on-Hudson. The first feature of the new plan is the report sent quarterly to the parents. This is printed...
