That artist; worked upon it until no discoverable difference remained; and the fac simile was before Mr. Steevens constantly till he died. Mr. Steevens drew a little himself, and was much conversant in pictures; but in such a fabrication as is here spoken of, if he conceived it, and directed the execution, he must have had the aid of some painter in oil. Mr: Fuseli, it appears, pronounced the picture to have been the work of some Flemish hand. There is however something of strange coincidence in what I have before stated. Mr. Wilson receives in 1792 from a man of fashion, who must not be named, a head of the poet, dated in 1597, and endorsed Guil. Shakspeare. About the same time, were received sundry deeds, letters, and plays of Shakspeare from a gentleman, who in like manner was not to be named. And they abounded in the hand-writing of Elizabeth s reign, and also exhibited the poet s name with the recent orthography of the Commentators. I do not know that this picture might not have been intended to appear among the infinite possessions of the nameless gentleman. When I first saw this head at Richardson s, I found that it had been a good deal rubbed under the eyes; but that there were no circular cracks upon the surface, which time is sure to...
