At sixteen, they are trying to make the leap from Hello Kitty to lace thong underwear. Skye is incredibly talented and beautiful and into everything she can find in her Mom s medicine cabinet. Her parents don t seem to care what she does. Her mother is an ex-model who parties all the time and her dad still travels with his punk-rock band, leaving Skye to look after her two little sisters - when she s not hanging around with her homeless junkie boyfriend. Liv s parents are feeling their way through a recent divorce, but everyone seems to be OK with it. Then one day, all Liv has left is Skye s journal - her thoughts, frustrations, hopes and fears, her colorful drawings - and a lot of anger. She decides to join her mom - an award-winning documentary filmmaker - on a trek across The Himalaya as she films the charity work of a Tibetan monk. It is a long and harrowing journey for Liv who takes Skye s journal with her to read when no one else is around. Liv has so many questions. Will Skye s journal give her the answers she needs to be able to let go?.
