Dreams disquiet and delight me, busy and deceive me; and my soul rests not even in sleep from action and energy. What wonders are here united! How much is concentrated here by which the omniscient foresight of God is illustrated. But how many obscurities are there still at which the human understanding must pause, and on which it can only ponder in tacit amazement! How can I otherwise than with the most reverential astonishment and the liveliest thankfulness, look back upon the elapsed night! O may also I remember with the most ardent emotion the Lord who closed my eyes, who preserved my blood in its course, who defended my life from every danger, and invigorated my body by gentle repose! And how were it possible with such an assemblage of miracles and blessings not to admire the first, and extol the latter? No, so destitute of feeling my heart must not certainly be! Behold, Almighty Benefactor, with a deeply affected soul do I turn my thoughts to thee. I bless thy inexpressible-goodness which has allowed me to find rest and security under the covert of thy wings. I feel how much thy benevolence has enlivened and fortified me through soft and placid sleep, and I sanctify to thee this first sensation of renovated vigour and spirit. I sanctify to thee the first breath of my lips. Yes, my...
